2 Hrs. ATV Tour in Phuket

Phuket is more just white sandy beaches that meet turquoise waters which have acquired it the accolade of one of the best tourism destinations in the world. It is an island thick in rich jungle and this two-hour exploration on an all-terrain vehicle gives us a different perspective of the island. We start with a pre-ride safety briefing before embarking on an adventure on gravel and mud trails to view insect-eating plants, rubber tapping and Phuket's unspoilt beaches. Our four-wheeled vehicle takes us on routes which can be bumpy at times. We finish our forest adventure with refreshing cold drinks and local seasonal fruits.

Fishing Tour

Fish and seafood features heavily on Thai menus, and eating it straight out of the sea is as fresh as it comes. Taking to the waters with local fisherman aboard their traditional Thai long-tail boat, this excursion gives us an insight into the lives of fishermen who rely so heavily on the sea for their livelihoods. Watch how they skilfully catch fish, crab, squid and other sea delights before we test our abilities to see if we can be as successful in our catch as the professionals. Once we have a sizeable horde, our chefs will happily cook it for us to enjoy our dinner right in the location. All fishing equipment is provided.

Jungle Trekking

Koh Yao Noi has a dense jungle interior which is home to an array of indigenous plants, trees and animals. This tour takes us away from the beach to experience this tropical forest and admire its great variety of plants and wildlife. We hike past the impressive limestone rocks through the untouched jungle which is well off the tourist track and we might even be fortunate enough to spot a resident hornbill, or another local creature that calls this paradise location home. On the way we learn about the flora and fauna found in this idyllic setting. The highlight of the trek is the magnificent Ficus Religiosa or sacred tree which has an impressive height of over 30 metres and so large that it requires about 20 people to reach around its ancient trunk.

Koh Yao Biking

Absorb the sublime scenery of beautiful Koh Yao Noi during a leisurely bicycle ride alongside rice fields and through verdant rainforests. This two-wheel adventure provides a different perspective of this tropical island retreat in the Andaman Sea and allows a more personal connection with nature. The discovery commences with a road transfer and a motorboat cruise to Koh Yao Noi situated 37-km from Phuket. On arrival, we set off on a 12-km cycling adventure on a route that takes in picturesque fishing villages with traditional stilt homes. At midday, we embark on a scenic long-tail boat trip with a local fisherman to an idyllic beach for a picnic on the sands and swimming and sun lounging. The chosen coastline has a wonderful view of karst-lined Phang Nga Bay. We jump back on our bikes in the afternoon and undertake a 10-km ride on predominantly paved roads on the East coast, close to empty beaches with sweeping ocean views. We make a brief stop at a palm oil plantation and learn about local agricultural techniques. It is then time to make the return boat and van transfer. This excellent excursion takes guests well off the tourist trail.

Half Day Jai Yen Yen (Rum Factory Tour)

Phuket has many hidden spots awaiting discovery and we do this exploration in a relaxed and fun-way. Our visits include heading up to the second largest hill on the island to admire some of the most stunning sunsets seen in the country. We also visit a local cashew nut factory and get a taste of locally brewed rum at a renowned rum distillery, which are both representative industries of Phuket and visits to these two places gives us a taste of the 'hidden' but fascinating activities that can be found beyond the island's stunning coastline and forested interior.

City Tours

There is a lot to see of Phuket away from its pretty beaches. This sightseeing tour takes us inland to Phuket Town, home to the small enclave of Phuket Old Town which is brimming with Sino-Portuguese architecture. Exploring this part of the island takes us back to yesteryear when Phuket was in the midst of a tin boom that brought its initial affluence and its grand architecture. We then head to Phromthep Cape which has sublime views across the water, making it a popular photography spot. Next we continue to the island's biggest temple and then stop off the Gems Gallery, home to an extensive range of precious stones and an interesting aquarium attraction. The magnificent 'Gems Gallery Ride' provides us with an insight into how gemstones are mined.

The Hidden Phuket incl. Dinner

Phuket Old Town is brimming with Sino-Portuguese architecture and this is the perfect location to explore by foot. Rich cultural heritage and quaint colonial mansions take us back to yesteryear when Phuket was in the midst of a tin mining boom that brought the affluence to finance so many grand homes and ornate civic buildings. Outside of its rich cultural heritage, Phuket Old Town is a melting point of street-side eateries and stalls that serve some of the best Thai food available. The town's small size enables us to wander around this historic locale and admire in detail the design of the surrounding buildings and the attractiveness of Phuket's architecture along its side streets. This tour also takes us to visit an old Chinese temple. We end the tour with dinner from a viewpoint looking across the island.

Phuket Sino-Portuguese Culture Hidden Trails

Although famed for its spectacular coastline and idyllic beaches, Phuket's interior has some excellent hidden attractions. Prominent among these is the cultural enclave of Phuket Old Town. Situated in the south-east of the island, this features splendid Sino-Portuguese architecture, a remnant of an age when people came from afar to trade goods. Due to its strategic position between India and China, Phuket became a significant port on the merchant route between Europe and Asia from the 16th century onwards. It also attracted those seeking their fortunes from the tin mining boom. This immigration resulted in the creation of a fusion of architectural styles – seen today in the shop houses, civic buildings and grand stately homes in the island's capital. A visit to the Thai Hua Museum, housed in an impressive mansion, reveals stories about foreign arrivals who married local women, a practice that gave birth to the Peranakan culture. Another off-shoot of this was a culinary revolution; one of the reasons Phuket Old Town has UNESCO status as a City of Gastronomy. We will get to taste this delicious legacy at a local restaurant. Other tour highlights include traditional dessert tasting and a visit to Sang Dham Shrine.

Village Tours

Koh Yao Noi is a Thai island that makes you slow down a pace or two thanks to its friendly local people and relaxed atmosphere. Situated off Phuket and with views onto the Andaman Sea that is dotted with impressive limestone karsts, we explore the lush tropical scenery of this idyllic island. Starting at Tha Khao Pier, we observe local women undertake batik painting and then meet with local fishermen who will show us their best catch of the day, before heading out to a rubber plantation where we will learn how locals process latex into sheets of rubber. Our final stop is the local market where we might even see some water buffalo meandering in the locality too. Lunch is at a local seafood restaurant.

CBT Baan Bang Rong Community with Lunch

For an insight into a traditional way of living, this half-day excursion takes guests off the well-worn tourism trail to meet people who live by age-old practices. Our discovery starts at 7.30 am at Bang Rong Village, a Muslim community on the east coast of Phuket. Our destination is the Baan Bang Rong Agricultural Preservation Tourism Group, a body that promotes eco-practices. We can see how locals make a living from the natural environment and take part in hosted activities, such as creating a pateh bag, a famous handicraft in this community. Our immersion continues with a visit to a pineapple farm where we taste this delicious fruit straight out of the ground. We then watch a rubber tapping demonstration, a mainstay of the island's economy. We then learn about a crab conservation project, followed by the release of crabs into the sea near a mangrove forest. Our final call is a coconut garden to see how these nuts are harvested, followed by a cooking demonstration of the famous dessert khnam tom. This fascinating tour includes lunch cooked in a local community kitchen and a return transfer at around 1.30 pm.

Intara Farm Visit with Lunch

A short boat journey from Phuket takes guests to Intara Farm for a full day of aquaculture activities. We will embark on a journey back in time as we experience the island's past as a major destination for pearl cultivation and fishing. The excursion gets underway with a 9 am long-tail boat ride from Sapham Bay to the farm situated midway down the island's East coast, in a spectacular location off Coconut Island. We get a fascinating immersion into eco-friendly practices, such as the cultivation of pearls in oysters and rearing black salmon in floating nets. A highlight is releasing a snapper fish, one per person, so we can leave a positive environmental footprint. We also kayak through a dense mangrove forest and have the opportunity to enjoy refreshments in a bistro cafe suspended above the water on a wooden platform. Lunch is included on this tour. Long-tail boat transfers add to the authenticity of this water-based adventure that both enlightens and entertains.
